PROJECTS

POTENTIALLY HAZARDOUS ASTEROID TRACKER

Full-Stack Project

- Fetched and filtered data from NASA's Near-Earth Object Web Services API to query potentially hazardous asteroids.
- Stored API data in MongoDB, which solved the issue of having multiple API calls for periods greater than 7 days.
- Aggregated data to generate a three-day forecast and year to date count of close encounters.
- Allowed users to search for previous or upcoming close encounters by date.

JANUS

Front-End Project

- Combined Material-UI components to create photo carousels.
- Consolidated multiple API calls using Promises.
- Centralized global states with Redux, which allowed better data flow for passing states between widgets.
- Designed modals to visualize product similarities and differences.
- Organized team workflow by utilizing Agile practices such as Timeboxing and Feature Branch Git Workflow.

PHIDIAS

Back-End Project

- Sanitized and loaded CSV files into MongoDB using Node.Js.
- Dumped data from one database to the EC2 instance.
- Utilized Mongoose to validate incoming data.
- Optimized querying with MongoDB's pipeline-aggregation.
- Dockerized and deployed on AWS EC2.
